Your child has been referred to the community-based paediatric service.

Your child will be seen by a children's doctor (paediatrician) who is specially trained in child health and development.

What do Community-based Paediatricians do?

- We are involved in assessing children who have delayed development, learning difficulties, behaviour problems, social communication and interaction difficulties or complex neurodisabilities.

What will happen during the assessment?

- We will ask questions about your child's medical history (birth, development, past and present health, medication, immunisation); family social and medical history.
- We will observe and examine your child. This may include a full physical examination; measuring your child's height, weight and head circumference; examining skin for special skin marks using Woods light (ultraviolet light source which highlights skin marks).
- We may observe and assess your child's developmental skills.

Where will my child be seen?

- Your child will be usually be seen with you in your local clinic.
- Sometimes we will see your child with you in nursery or school or at home depending on their needs.

How long will the appointment last?

- The first appointment can last 45 minutes to an hour.
- Review appointments usually take around 30 minutes.

What will happen after the assessment?

- We will send you a copy of the clinic letter outlining the discussion and any actions we agreed.
- We send a copy of the letter to your GP; to the health visitor/ school nurse; to other professionals who know your child; and to those whom we are making a referral with your agreement.

Who else can be involved?

- Other professionals may be involved in this assessment and your child may be referred for hearing or vision assessment.
- With your agreement we liaise with other professionals from health, education and other services if they are involved with your child to help develop the best management plan for your child.

Will my child have tests or see specialists?

- Your child may be offered some tests which will be arranged at a health centre or hospital near to you.
- Your child may be offered further referrals, for example to a neurologist (a specialist who deals with the brain and nervous system) or geneticist (a specialist who deals with a person's genetic makeup) to try to determine the cause of your child's difficulties.

What else do community paediatricians do?

- Provide medical advice to the Education Authority when a child's special educational needs are being assessed.
- Help manage the health needs of children who are being adopted or are in foster care (Looked After by Local Authority).
- Give specialist health advice on immunisations.
- Work closely with many other health professionals including physiotherapists, speech and language therapists, psychologists, occupational therapist and hospital specialists to help make sure your child receives all the help they need.
- Work closely with professionals in education and social services if this is needed for your child.
